He was a member of the 45th Division, 180th Infantry, Company "F", Second Battalion; and

WHEREAS, one evening, Hal LeFlore Gooding and his Platoon were assigned to defend three Patton tanks that were trapped in a minefield and in danger of falling into enemy hands. At 2:00 AM, several hundred North Koreans assaulted the Platoon. The first attack was repelled, but a second commenced at 4:00 AM. During the second attack, when one of the crucial BAR gunners was killed, Hal LeFlore Gooding made his way through the minefield to one of the
