2. Set criteria for assigning court-ordered offenders to available projects;
3. Keep records of approved projects and submit offender evaluations to the county commissioners;
4. Enter into contracts for employment of a program coordinator and necessary support staff and contracts and agreements for restrictive housing units; and
5. Make recommendations to the district court judges, county commissioners, district and city attorneys, law enforcement officials and others for effective ways to improve effective program services, address criminal conduct in the community, and reintegration of returning offenders.

E. Supervision of all work and reintegration projects may be provided by local volunteers or other participating entities. The costs of materials and all associated expenses for a project shall be the responsibility of the entity benefiting from the offender labor and other participating entities. There shall be no charges or costs assessed against any offender for participation in any project. No offender labor shall be utilized on a private residence or property or for the benefit of any for-profit organization, except for weed abatement, to remedy a public nuisance or as a public service project to an entire neighborhood or area of the city after vote of the city council as provided in this subsection. The city council may offer free offender labor services to an entire neighborhood or area of the city as a public service project once per year, and in such case notice to each home owner in the neighborhood must issue at least thirty (30) days in advance of a city council meeting where a vote will be taken for approval or rejection of the public service project. For all public service projects using offender labor at least fifty percent (50%) of the targeted neighborhood receiving the notice must affirmatively agree in writing to accept the free service as a public service project.

F. Offenders court ordered to a term of work or reintegration shall not receive any compensation for their labor. All labor shall be deemed part of the punishment for the criminal offense and shall not be deemed to be community service hours or work release placements.

G. The participating entities may enter into partnership agreements to establish, or the committee may contract for, restrictive housing units in conjunction with the Work Accountability and Reintegration Program. The county sheriff or the Department of Corrections shall assist in establishing such units which shall meet minimal health, safety and security requirements as may be required for other similar housing units such as work release centers, community corrections facilities, or halfway houses. The per diem cost of feeding and housing offenders court-ordered into restrictive housing shall not exceed the statutory cost of confinement for Community Service Sentencing Program (CSSP) offenders in county jail. Such cost shall be the responsibility of the Department of Corrections.

H. Nothing in this section shall be construed to prohibit compensating any person for hours worked in addition to the court-ordered hours or from hiring any person at the conclusion of the court-ordered term of work. For purposes of future employment, all court-ordered terms of work and reintegration shall be considered employment for purposes of any job application. Potential employers of any offender participating in WARP may verify such employment through the county commissioners.

I. Every work and reintegration project shall provide an evaluation of each offender assigned for work on the project. All evaluations shall be delivered to the county commissioners at the conclusion of the project to be used as job evaluations and recommendations for future employment. Each evaluation shall contain information, including but not limited to: reported for work as scheduled, work ethic and responsibility, special skills, level of trainability, follows instructions, attitude, responsiveness to authority, and ability to relate to others.

SECTION 3. This act shall become effective July 1, 2006.

SECTION 4. It being immediately necessary for the preservation of the public peace, health and safety, an emergency is hereby declared to exist, by reason whereof this act shall take effect and be in full force from and after its passage and approval.
