It would affect bills which create or increase certain fees and send funds to certain sources. One source is the state's General Revenue Fund. This kind of fee bill would have to begin in the House of Representatives. It could not be voted on during the five last days of the legislative session. These bills would only be enacted under certain situations. They could be voted on by the people of the state. They would be enacted only if approved by a majority of those voting. They could also be enacted by another method. The Legislature would have to approve them by a certain majority. It would require the approval of three-fourths of all Legislators. It would only become effective 90 days after the Legislature approves it and the Governor acts on it.
