Research Analysis

The committee substitute to HB 1329 provides that when a lethality assessment conducted during a preliminary investigation of a domestic violence crime establishes probable cause for a peace officer to believe the victim is in imminent risk of death or serious bodily harm, the officer is to contact a district court judge and seek intervention of the court. After review of the probable cause, the court may order the person to appear within 48 hours for a hearing to determine if an ankle monitor should be placed on the person until a hearing on a temporary victim protective order is held.

Fiscal Analysis

After review of the measure, it has been determined that there are no fiscal considerations to the state. Currently, persons determined to need an ankle monitor / GPS tracker, are responsible for those costs.
