Research Analysis

The engrossed version of SB1623 requires public schools to offer extended learning opportunities (ELOs) to students. ELOs could be enrichment opportunities outside the classroom setting, or internships and apprenticeships.

School boards are required to adopt policies that provide a process through which entities may apply to offer extended learning opportunities to students. The policy must define which entities are eligible to submit applications to offer ELOs, and provide a process through which a student may request credit for an ELO.
