Bill Analysis

SB 1292 provides that after completing assessments of individuals waiting to receive home- and community-based services for individuals with intellectual disabilities, the Department of Human Services must compile a final report providing information outlined in the measure to the President Pro Tempore of the Senate and Speaker of the House of Representatives. The Department must also publish the report on its website. Information in the report shall include demographic information on individuals waiting to receive home- and community-based services, the number of applicants who began or stopped receiving services, relevant trends in data, frequency of contact between the Department and applicants and the mode of contact, resource gaps by type and geographic area, and resource or community supports and resources in need of expansion.
