Bill Analysis

SB 193 modifies penalties related to county regulations. The measure authorizes the county to levy fines and fees for violations related to health inspections, property maintenance, and building regulations. Additionally, adds up to 90 days imprisonment in the county jail for repeated violations relating to county regulations and caps the penalty at up to $1,000.00 per violation. The measure provides for a person to plead not guilty and to request a court appearance. The request and relevant information relating to the case shall be submitted to the district attorney's office. Notifications of a violation may be delivered personally, by mail to the address on file with the county assessor's office or the last-known address, or posted in a conspicuous place in or about the property where the violation occurred.
