Research Analysis

HB2746 creates the "Courtney Smith Law," which allows a general guardian who has obtained a court order for inpatient mental health treatment for their ward to apply for an order requiring officials to retrieve and deliver the ward to an inpatient treatment facility if the ward is unable to provide for their personal needs, the ward is unable to voluntarily request and receive assistance for their personal needs, or the ward is unable to safely survive without involuntary detention and does not have other help. No person will be presumed incompetent because they have been evaluated or treated for a mental disorder, whether or not evaluation or treatment was voluntarily or involuntarily received.
