Impact:	Please see previous summary of this measure

Research Analysis

The conference committee substitute for SB706 provides that upon a demand for a trial by jury for a termination of parental rights case, the court must issue a scheduling order within 30 days. A jury trial must commence within six months of the issuance of the scheduling order unless the court issues a written order with a findings of fact supporting a determination that an exceptional circumstance exists to support the delay or that all relevant parties agree to the continuance.
