Research Analysis

The committee substitute for SB800 allows manufacturers to include goods with alcoholic beverages in packaging, but wholesalers and retailers cannot sell the packages at a higher price than the alcoholic beverage alone. Retailers may offer discounts on retail packages for specific professions, including current or former members of the United States Armed Forces, but the discount cannot result in a retail price lower than a six percent markup.

Retail spirits license holders are prohibited from pricing items higher online than the shelf price in their physical store, and spirits or wines can't be sold to any licensee at a price less than fifteen percent above the wholesaler's cost, except for discontinued or closed-out products. The "laid in cost" includes the wholesaler's cost from the supplier, minus any supplier support, plus freight, handling costs, and taxes.
