Fiscal Analysis

The CS to HB2258 would require that the Oklahoma Corporation Commission (OCC) authenticate, preserve, and make permanently accessible to the public certain official legal materials. Officials with the OCC have provided the following information:

There would be a significant fiscal impact to the OCC if the agency is required to publish opinions with the Secretary of State (SOS). This is because doing so would require software changes and programming in order to properly correspond with the SOS in regards to the related documents. However, the agency is unable to quantify the extent of the impact at this time.

Based on the current form of HB2258, the OCC expects an unknown but significant fiscal impact as a result of the measure. Additionally, officials with the Administrative Office of the Courts (AOC) state that they are reviewing the measure for a potential impact to the Courts. Though the Courts are not able to quantify the impact at this time, there is expected to be an impact. Therefore, there is an unexpected impact to both the OCC and the AOC as a result of HB2258.
